How to get published in a good journal?

Jean-Marc Dewaele (Birkbeck College, University of London)

The pressure to publish is increasing world-wide. Based on my five year experience as general editor of the International Journal of Bilingualism and Bilingual Education (Taylor & Francis), I will give some tips on the things that authors can do and should avoid to get their papers published. I will highlight some of the priorities and concerns that editors face in dealing with papers.
